A Marriage on the Brink

Sarah and Bob's marriage crumbles

Sarah Morgan, a high-powered attorney, finds herself in a tense divorce meeting with her husband, Bob. Their marriage, once a partnership of equals, is now a battlefield of betrayal and mistrust due to Bob's infidelity. Despite Bob's pleas for reconciliation, Sarah is resolute in her decision to end the marriage, knowing that trust, once broken, cannot be mended. The meeting ends without resolution, deepening the chasm between them.

As Sarah leaves, she reflects on the inevitability of their divorce, a decision she made long before Bob's affair came to light.

Secrets and Lies Unravel

Adam's past haunts the present

The narrative shifts to a documentary-style interview with Adam Morgan, Sarah's first husband, who is on death row for the murder of his mistress, Kelly Summers. Adam maintains his innocence, claiming he was framed and drugged the night of the murder. The interview reveals the complexities of Adam's relationship with Kelly and the circumstantial evidence that led to his conviction. As Adam recounts the events leading up to Kelly's death, the reader is left questioning the truth. Did Adam really commit the crime, or is he a victim of a larger conspiracy?

A Mysterious Disappearance

Stacy Howard vanishes without a trace

The story takes a darker turn with the disappearance of Stacy Howard, a young woman with ties to Bob. Stacy's roommate reports her missing, revealing a text message from Stacy claiming she was meeting Bob the night she vanished. Bob, already under scrutiny for his affair, becomes a person of interest in Stacy's disappearance. The police investigation intensifies, uncovering Stacy's past as a blackmailer and her connection to the Morgan Foundation. As the search for Stacy continues, the lines between victim and perpetrator blur, leaving everyone involved on edge.

The Past Resurfaces Violently
